Local heroes join forces for Borough of Culture 2019

Local heroes including Damon Albarn, Zarah Hussain, Talvin Singh and Matthew Bourne have been named as creative forces in a big reveal of the first ever London Borough of Culture programme in 2019. The Mayor of London, Sadiq Khan, announced the first acts of the Waltham Forest programme in a much-anticipated event that took place on 30 October at The Walthamstow Wetlands.

They will be the influential visionaries behind headline acts 'Africa Express: TOGETHER', featuring Leytonstone-born founding member Damon Albarn, dancer in residency programme with fellow hero Matthew Bourne's award-winning dance company 'New Adventures' and acclaimed artist Zarah Hussain, who will create a vast outdoor installation of 50,000 lights in the wilds of Walthamstow.

Other events to look forward to include the canopy of Epping Forest being transformed into a stage for a children's theatrical concert 'GIANT' and Walthamstow Market being brought to life after-hours for a weekend festival, 'Art Night'. Chingford's May Day Fayre will be reimagined for the 21st century with a procession of thousands of bicycles to Chingford Plain.

Sadiq Khan, Mayor of London, Cllr Clare Coghill Leader of Waltham Forest Council, Sam Hunt Creative Director of London Borough of Culture 2019 and artist Zarah Hussain spoke at the event, which was attended by media and high profile people from culture and politics.

Sadiq Khan said: "I am determined to ensure that all Londoners get the opportunity to experience our cultural riches regardless of their background or where they live, and to increase the level of participation in culture across London."

"Waltham Forest's exciting plans – from lighting up the marshes to uniting Londoners through music – will bring different communities together to enjoy the positive impact of the arts. Culture has the power to inspire and provide positive opportunities for the next generation, so I'm particularly pleased that Waltham Forest will be involving young people across the borough in their year-long programme of celebration."

Cllr Clare Coghill, Leader of Waltham Forest Council, said: "As the first London Borough of Culture, Waltham

Forest stands shoulder to shoulder with the Mayor of London's vision and commitment to the transformative power of culture. It is not an optional add-on, an afterthought, or something nice to have; investment in culture is essential to ensure that everybody in Waltham Forest enjoys a great quality of life.

"The imaginative programme we announce today will shine a light on the stories and cultural heritage of our borough. It will create a platform that is not only for the people, but by the people, blurring the line between residents and artists for the benefit of everyone in this community. Welcome to the Forest!"

In brief

Youth focus this November

In Waltham Forest we want to celebrate all the amazing young people who live here, and there are two great national initiatives happening in November that highlight this. From 5 to 11 November, it is Youth Work Week, providing an opportunity for youth organisations, youth workers and young people to celebrate their achievements and the positive impact of their work. This year, Youth Work Week runs alongside the Children's Commissioner's Youth Takeover Challenge and a calendar of events for the whole month is planned. This includes chairing Cabinet to attending Children and Families scrutiny meetings and Young Peoples' Forums. We also have a Youth Takeover edition of Waltham Forest News in the next edition. On Friday 23 November, there is a special event in the Town Hall for young people – meet your new Waltham Forest London Youth Assembly representatives. You can register your interest to attend here: wfyouthrepresentatives231118.eventbrite.co.uk

Making Waltham Forest Safer

A focus on St James Street area to crack down on crime

Waltham Forest Council and the Metropolitan Police Service are working together to tackle crime and anti-social behaviour in the St James Street area, taking direct action against those responsible for anti-social behaviour and violent crime on our streets.

We know that in recent months there have been a number of ongoing issues and incidents relating to anti-social behaviour, crime and gangs in and around St James Street. This is a key priority and we are working hard to crack down on this unacceptable behaviour.

Since the beginning of October, Police and Council Officers have carried out a number of joint, targeted operations. They have carried out raids, patrols and inspections to crack down on crime, make changes to the physical environment to help design out anti-social behaviour and also to gather intelligence.

To tackle drug dealing and violence in the borough, 20 arrests were made on Wednesday 3 October following a series of raids that took place across the borough, including in St James Street. Suspects were arrested for offences including intent to supply drugs, and one man was also arrested for possession of a firearm.

We are also hosting a community meeting on Tuesday 20 November at 6.30pm at Mission Grove Primary School, E17 7EJ to work together with local residents to make the St James Street area safer.

Spaces are limited, local residents can book a place at: stjamesmeeting201118.eventbrite.co.uk

From the Leader

Cllr Clare Coghill

There's a buzz around the borough and rightly so, we've just launched the programme for London's first Borough of Culture. The programme is something that we can all be proud of and I want to thank the 15,000 residents that pledged their support – you were instrumental in Mayor Sadiq Khan and his team choosing Waltham Forest above all the other areas of London.

2019's programme will put us firmly on the map, with local artists and musicians coming together to deliver world class events. It is a programme that could only have been made here. It will showcase the huge pool of talent in our borough those famous names that were born and raised here.

Culture is not an optional add-on, an afterthought, or something nice to have; investment in culture is essential to ensure that everybody enjoys a great quality of life. Shared world class events help bring communities together and our year will see half a million visitors to the borough, many for the first time, bringing jobs and investment. Our Borough of Culture programme will create 100 new apprenticeships for our young people so that they can build a career in our flourishing cultural industries.

Every day when I walk past the Assembly Hall next to Walthamstow Town Hall I think about the quote from another famous resident of the borough, William Morris, emblazoned above the entrance "Fellowship is life and the lack of fellowship is death."

At a time of increasing uncertainty and division, we need fellowship and shared cultural experiences more than ever. Culture bonds us together and despite having to make hard decisions on funding we have continued to invest in our cultural infrastructure and events to give all our residents exciting events they can go to for free. Just last week 20,000 of you attended our free fireworks display at the Town Hall, with many more visiting Leyton Carnival, Chingfest, Mela and Walthamstow Garden Party during the summer.

With our year in the spotlight only a few weeks away, I hope all of you will get involved and share in an experience that will show to the rest of London and beyond what an amazing place Waltham Forest is.

Digital Month is live

Meet a local Digital Champion

Jane Sherry on the move

Jane Sherry volunteered as a Digital Champion because she wanted to share her skills with local people.

While working full-time for Waltham Forest Council, she was still able to fit in volunteering around her working week. Jane completed eight weeks as a Digital Champion in a local GP surgery in Walthamstow, where she helped patients register to the Patients Online service. Jane explained that she really enjoyed the flexible nature of the role and helped 40 local people sign up to the service.

Jane said: "It's a really simple thing to do but many people weren't aware that the service even existed. Lots of patients were really appreciative and pleased to find out that they could order their repeat prescriptions or book appointments online.

"Having the training and support through the Waltham Forest Digital Champions Network has been really useful and given me the confidence to get out there and offer my help. I think most people take the skills they have for granted, and don't realise that by sharing their knowledge they can really help others. Once you have the confidence it is a lot easier to be a Digital Champion than you think and so rewarding too."

Slower speeds prevent injuries

Twenty mile per hour speed limits are being introduced on the borough's main roads to prevent residents from being seriously injured.

Most of the borough's residential roads already have a 20 mile per hour speed limit, but now many of the main roads are being capped at the same limit to help improve road safety. Waltham Forest Council is supporting Transport for London's Vision Zero, a commitment which cities across the globe have signed up with an aim to prevent deaths or serious injuries from road traffic collisions.

Recently Blackhorse Road, St James Street, South Grove, Selborne Road, Markhouse Road, Church Road, Forest Road and Chingford Road have all been made 20mph. By the end of the year Hoe Street, High Road Leyton, Ruckholt Road and part of Hainault Road will all see their speed limit reduced to 20mph and Whipps Cross Road and Woodford New Road will be reduced from 40mph to 30mph

By next spring, the whole of Lea Bridge Road and Leytonstone High Road will have transitioned to 20mph as well.

Cllr Clyde Loakes, Deputy Leader and Cabinet Member for the Environment, said: "We have been working hard to improve the borough's roads so that they are safe for all road users, especially the most vulnerable pedestrians and cyclists. We've been installing more formal pedestrian road crossings, better junctions and reducing traffic on local roads to prevent motorists using what should be quiet residential roads as a cut-through.

"Reducing speed limits is the next step because we all know that if everyone travels slower then we all have more time to react to prevent a serious accident."

A smart home to explore

As part of Waltham Forest Digital Month, last week Waltham Forest Council offered residents the chance to come and experience a fully simulated digital smart home for assisted living.

Provided by MySense, the smart home demonstration features a full inventory of assisted living devices including various sensors to monitor an individual's health. These are designed to help empower people to live as independently as possible, whatever their health, mobility or age. Waltham Forest Council is exploring this kind of technology to learn more about how digital innovation can help in assisting our residents.

Cllr Liaquat Ali MBE, Cabinet Member for Commercial Operations and Transformation, explains: "This is an exciting time for Waltham Forest and our recent agreement of our digital strategy is a step towards adopting innovative and exciting solutions in delivering crucial council services."

4 Life Chances

Young people: Resilient, confident and healthy

Young Advisor, Roni at a focus on talking about mental health

Protecting the mental health of our young people

At the start of October, the council and schools borough-wide recognised World Mental Health Day. All schools in Waltham Forest gave feedback on the needs of their pupils, in order to define a new 'Mental Health Charter'. The charter is due to be complete next year, and will outline schools and the council's joint commitment to support the mental and emotional wellbeing of 5 to 19-year-olds in Waltham Forest.

At Chingford Foundation School, the Deputy Safeguarding Lead, Sharon Goldstone, and Peer Listeners from Chingford Foundation marked the day by organising a mental health assembly in the school. Peer Listeners are pupils trained to offer a listening ear to other pupils from the school who may want to talk to another person of their age. Promo2u, a local business in Waltham Forest, also worked with the school to sponsor a mindfulness session with young people at the school.

Healthy Schools London Programme

Through the Healthy Schools London programme, the council is working closely with over 50 schools in Waltham Forest to focus on issues such as school food, active travel and emotional wellbeing. The Healthy Schools programme aims to influence the whole school community and create lasting change from the ground-up. The programme offers rewarding incentives to create an environment that safeguards and promotes health and wellbeing. Currently, 87 per cent of Waltham Forest schools are registered on the Healthy Schools London programme.

One school, Newport Primary, achieved a Gold award by improving pupils' diets and levels of exercise. As a result of their whole school approach, a packed lunch audit found that healthy lunches went from just 9 per cent of lunches up to over 50 per cent and numbers of pupils taking part in physical activities doubled.

Kooth counselling service

The council recognises the need to invest early in our young people to develop their resilience, mental, emotional and all-round wellbeing. The new digital online counselling service, Kooth offers support for young people aged 11 to 18-years-old living in Waltham Forest.

The service provides support to young people, typically below the threshold for receiving specialist support and offers qualified counsellors alongside live forums and articles written by young people about stress, relationships and more.

Young people can access the online service anonymously by registering on kooth.com and selecting Waltham Forest from the drop-down menu. The phoneline is open all-year-round, from midday until 10pm on weekdays and 6pm until 10pm at weekends.

The council's Youth Mental Health Ambassadors (YMHAs) were involved in developing the online service, with training and support from the council. They consulted with schools across Waltham Forest and advised the Local Authority, NHS and other partners on what an appropriate early intervention offer for mental and emotional wellbeing should look like.

From having the emotional tools to deal with negative news, to the self-belief to take every opportunity life throws at you – we believe that supporting young people to be resilient, confident and healthy is critical for them to thrive. That is why Waltham Forest Council has made this one of four priority areas in our plan to improve life chances, alongside ensuring the best start in life, a good quality education for every child, and providing opportunities to flourish. The plan to improve life chances – 'Creating Futures for Young People' – was published in September in response to the recommendations of the Life Chances Commission. It includes a wide range of initiatives to tackle youth violence, mental health issues, and general life skills.

Calling all young people: Find a career you love

Finding a career you love can be a real challenge at any age.

If you're between the ages of 14 and 24-years-old the choices you make can have a big impact on your future career and the job opportunities that will be available to you. To help, Waltham Forest Council is gathering employers, training providers and colleges in the Assembly Hall at the Town Hall campus in Forest Road, Walthamstow on Tuesday 20 November for a Careers Fair.

Throughout the day students from secondary schools across the borough will be visiting and from 4pm until 6pm, anyone from the ages of 14 to 24 can visit with family or friends. There is no need to book, simply drop in.

There will be information and advice on apprenticeships, traineeships and further education courses. There will also be jobs and volunteering opportunities in a wide range of businesses including the arts, business administration, engineering, construction, hospitality, law, finance and business administration.

The council is committed to making sure careers advice and guidance is consistent and high quality across the borough, as part of our action plan to improve life chances, 'Creating Futures for Young People'. Our careers fair is a step towards achieving that goal.

Lest we forget: Remembrance Sunday

On 30 October politicians from all parties joined faith leaders, former military heads and charities to support Remember Together, a new initiative to promote integration by bringing people from different faiths and ethnic backgrounds together to mark remembrance of shared history and the centenary of the First World War Armistice. Cllr Clare Coghill, Leader of Waltham Forest Council, was one of the signatories on a joint letter highlighting the service soldiers from across the Commonwealth had made. The text of the letter reads:

Sir

11 November 2018 marks not only Remembrance Sunday but also 100 years since the end of the First World War. It comes at a time when Britain's society can feel more fragmented and anxious than any of us would want.

There is increasing awareness that Remembrance could, should and does belong to all of us.

The armies of 1914-18 looked more like the Britain of 2018 than that of its day. British troops fought alongside soldiers of different colours and creeds from across the Commonwealth, including some 1.5 million Indian soldiers, 400,000 of them Muslims from present-day Pakistan. Yet only a minority knows that thousands of Muslim soldiers fought for Britain – including soldiers like Khudadad Khan, awarded the Victoria Cross for bravery in 1914.

This shared history of service and contribution is something that we can all commemorate in Britain, whatever our ethnicity or faith.

Remember Together, which launches this week, brings people together to remember all of those who fought for Britain a century ago. Imams in mosques around the country will give remembrance-themed services at Friday prayers as the occasion is marked in churches, synagogues and temples across the country. Young people from communities with little contact will meet, learn, give thanks to past generations and uncover what they have in common today.

We urge everyone this November, across the UK, to put differences and divisions aside and Remember Together.

Remember Together

Waltham Forest Council also worked with pupils Eden Girls School and Walthamstow School for Girls who have students from a broad range of ethnic and faith backgrounds, to pair-up and better understand this history that we all share.

Students took part in a workshop where they learned more about the armies that fought for Britain in the First World War, looking at some of the individual soldiers of all creeds and colours who served from 1914–18. The students then worked with their partners to make giant remembrance poppies, each one featuring the image of an individual soldier from across the Commonwealth who had fought in the First World War. These were made into poppy wreaths to be displayed at the two schools and one was laid at yesterday's Walthamstow remembrance service on Remembrance Sunday.

2019 is going to be an unforgettable year

The first events for London Borough of Culture 2019 have now been announced. From concerts performed in the canopies of Epping Forest to a mass cycling procession to mark May Day, 2019 is set to be an unforgettable year.

Sam Hunt, Creative Director, London Borough of Culture 2019, said: "Our ideas for the programme start with the community itself, not just drawing on the legacy of the arts and crafts movement inspired by William Morris and the many famous Waltham Forest artists who have made it to the top, but also the thriving creative powerhouse of small-scale artistic production driving us forward right here and now in the borough. We hope there will be something for every member of the community to enjoy."

As previously announced, the opening celebration 'Welcome to the Forest' will run every evening from 11 to 13 January. Mercury Award-winning musician Talvin Singh will collaborate with digital artists Greenaway and Greenaway and students of Leyton Sixth Form College for a striking audio-visual display. Each evening a spectacular light projection will illuminate Waltham Forest Town Hall. They will be joined by a new commission from world-renowned artists, Addictive TV presenting the soundtrack of the borough through the video remixing of Waltham Forest's rich and diverse musical talent.

At Lloyd Park, 'Nest', a 25m-wide kinetic light sculpture designed by Marshmallow Laser Feast in collaboration with composer Erland Cooper, will present an immersive audio-visual experience that brings the community together for a collective interactive experience. The opening event will culminate in a high-octane street party curated by locally-based festival producers Continental Drifts.

From 25 to 29 March, Africa Express presents 'Africa Express: TOGETHER', a show of togetherness in Leytonstone – where founding member Damon Albarn grew up – bringing together musicians from different cultures, genres and generations. Rehearsals will create new music for a five-hour headline show to showcase the rich cultural history of the borough.

In Leyton in April, Blackhorse Workshop will create a hands-on immersive performance 'Atomic 50' inspired by Waltham Forest's manufacturing heritage of tin toy making. The following month, thousands of bicycles will lead a mass procession on 6 May through the borough to Chingford Plain for a 21st century reimagining of Chingford's traditional May Day Fayre.

Free contemporary art festival 'Art Night' will come to Waltham Forest for one weekend, alongside the 'E17 Art Trail' – London's largest community-led art festival, with free exhibitions, workshops and artist events spanning the length of Walthamstow High Street Market.

In the summer, the inventive London cabaret group, Duckie will take to the great outdoors to cook up an alfresco feast to celebrate Leytonstone's feisty native Fanny Cradock in 'Duckie Loves Fanny', a gender politics party of drag Queens and Kings.

In September, audiences will be invited to journey into the forest for a new unique family concert experience, 'GIANT' as the forest canopy becomes the stage for a performance inspired by Oscar Wilde's classic fairy-tale, 'The Selfish Giant' and Epping-born Romantic poet John Clare.

In October, the wilds of the borough's natural spaces will be transformed by visual artist Zarah Hussain for 'Molecules on the Marshes' – a vast light installation which will see the marshes illuminated by 50,000 solar powered lights in the shape of water molecules – one for every young person in the borough.

Children at St Mary's creating the artwork

At the London Borough of Culture 2019 programme launch on Tuesday 30 October, award-winning Walthamstow based author-illustrator Benji Davies led a reading and creative workshop with pupils of St Mary's C of E Primary School to bring his picture book 'Grandad's Island' to life.

For London Borough of Culture 2019, arts development organisation Artillery will co-create artworks with thousands of Waltham Forest residents for our streets and parks culminating in a multi-art form story trail inspired by 'Grandad's Island' in October 2019.

At the workshop at the Walthamstow Wetlands, Benji read from 'Grandad's Island', and shared his drawing techniques with the children recreating some of the characters. Inspired by the vivid birds of Benji's illustrations, the children created a colourful flock of parrots. The flock has now dispersed to St Mary's school. Artillery talks of them as their 'early messengers' for more creative neighbourhood workshops happening next year where residents will collaborate with artists and bring elements of the picture book off the page and into our public spaces.

The Mayor of London Sadiq Khan, who opened the announcements for London Borough of Culture 2019 at the Walthamstow Wetlands, also attended the workshop and spoke to some of the children about their characters.

Laura Kerry, Director of Artillery said: "'From Page to Pavement' is all about creating together. It's an approach to working collaboratively that we have developed from what we have learnt delivering the 'E17 Art Trail'. We can't wait to get started and will need everyone's help to make it happen."

Morag McGuire, Director of Artillery said: "It's been fantastic to meet some of the pupil Art Leads at St Mary's school – these young artists and their winged creations are our first messengers to residents about our project."

Mobile kiosk will help answer your questions

The finished kiosk in use at Switchboard Studios

Matter Architecture has been employed to develop the designs and consult about the proposed improvements and one of the ways they will be doing that is through our own mobile information kiosk. The kiosk was commissioned out to students on the Masters of Architecture course at the University of East London to design and build, and will be used at the consultation events taking place next year.

Although the kiosk will be used to consult on visions for the future, the students designed the kiosk around a traditional market traders' wheeled barrow – a nod to the strong street market heritage within the borough that we wish to preserve.

Student and local resident, Anjum Khan, said: "We came up with a design and presented it to the council and Matter Architecture. When we were commissioned to build it, we learnt how to work in 3D and construct objects from our drawings into real-life using the tools and machinery at Blackhorse Workshops."

There are lots of exciting ideas coming forward about how to improve Walthamstow High Street and the council be asking residents, community groups and businesses – including market traders – for their thoughts on proposals.

Gas storage site prepared for development

One of the gas holders at Clementina Road, Leyton

The skyline of Leyton is changing as three long-standing gas holders in Clementina Road are currently being dismantled by National Grid. The way gas is stored has changed hugely over the last 10 years. Underground pipes are now more commonly used, leaving the three disused gas holders redundant.

Work has started on site to clear the water, oil and sludge from inside the gas holders, which are up to 20 metres high and would have held up to 85,000m³ of gas each when full.

Their removal will unlock a 2.5 hectare of redundant brownfield land for redevelopment in the future.

The work will take place from 8am to 6pm on Monday to Friday. Weekend working is not anticipated, but if this is required it will be 8am to 1pm on Saturdays. No work will take place on Sundays, bank or public holidays.

National Grid anticipates completing this work by March 2019.

Elisabeth Lennard at the Ella pop up shop

Local resident, Elisabeth Lennard, opened her first permanent shop at 210 Francis Road, Leyton this September. The opening follows a trial of her ladies' vintage clothing business at the pop-up shop organised by Waltham Forest Council, and gave her the confidence to take the next step.

Elisabeth said: "My business focuses on ladies' vintage clothing, taking items and completing any minor repairs before putting them on sale. It all started with a stall at the Wood Street indoor market. I was getting a lot of repeat customers so when the opportunity came to use the council's pop-up shop in Leytonstone High Road, I accepted. Using the pop-up shop gave me the chance to try different types of window displays which was a great opportunity before renting a permanent shop."

"Following the pop-up's success, the council's business support team told me about a vacant shop in Francis Road – ideal for my needs. They've done really good job improving that shopping area and the pedestrianisation means I can display some of my clothing outside the shop to encourage customers to come inside. The other shopkeepers have also been really friendly and supportive, inviting me to their meetings even before I actually opened the shop."

Elisabeth added: "Waltham Forest Council has given me a lot of support; they've provided a quick and friendly service so I could talk through the project to see if it's viable and sent details of suitable vacant shops. With the Borough of Culture turning the spotlight on Waltham Forest throughout 2019, I have a very positive feeling about the opportunities available for my type of business."

"My ambition is to have a nice shop that has a good reputation for providing a first class service to local customers – something I'm sure I can achieve here in Francis Road."

Helping to prevent diabetes

For World Diabetes Day, Waltham Forest Council, working with partners from the council's Children and Family team, the NHS and Diabetes Action Group, will be joining millions around the world to recognise the effects of diabetes, urging families to take action.

Join the team at Walthamstow Town Square on 14 November at 11am to 4pm to find out more about preventing diabetes, and local services available to support families.

In Waltham Forest, over 24,000 adults are thought to be living with diabetes, of whom about one third are not yet diagnosed. Type 2 diabetes, which accounts for 90 per cent of all diabetes can be delayed or prevented through lifestyle changes. There is a lot families can do to prevent diabetes and support loved ones to recognise the signs early on.

Services in Waltham Forest

Through the HENRY programme, Waltham Forest Children and Families' centres offer families support around healthy eating, nutrition and infant feeding. Each Children and Family centre hub has trained nutritionists and champions, who offer support for families with children five-years-old and under.

Additionally The Healthier You: NHS Diabetes Prevention Programme in Waltham Forest identifies those at high risk of diabetes, offering them a personalised service to help to reduce their risk of type 2 diabetes.

Cllr Asghar, Lead Cabinet Member for Health and Wellbeing said: "Many cases of type 2 diabetes can be prevented by adopting a healthy lifestyle, yet type 2 diabetes is a leading cause of heart disease, sight loss, lower limb amputation and can even lead to death. "Reducing your family's risk starts at home and that is why the council has invested in supporting families to create a healthy environment through our Children and Families centres. If you have diabetes in your family, learn about the risks and warning signs to look out for and what you can do to protect yourself and your family."

Rough sleepers: StreetLink can help

St Mungo's outreach teams support people away from rough sleeping

As the winter season gets closer, the nights draw in, and the temperatures drop, life gets even harder for those who find themselves sleeping rough on our streets.

The council works closely with StreetLink, a partnership between Homeless Link and St Mungo's, which enables members of the public to use a free app to help connect someone sleeping rough to local services for support. StreetLink staff and volunteers record information about the person in need of help and pass details on to local services to provide assistance to help them move away from the streets.

To help StreetLink get help to the person in need, please try and provide as much detail as you can, including the specific location of where the person is bedded down, details of the times you have seen them at that location, and any other information you can share that will help StreetLink identify them. StreetLink will then send the information to local services to help vulnerable people off the streets and into warmth and safety. If requested, they will also update you as the referrer after 14 days.

Matt Harrison, Director of StreetLink, said: "Often people are concerned and when they see someone sleeping rough, their instinct is to help, but they don't always know how. Through our website and app, StreetLink enables people to take immediate action to make sure that rough sleepers are connected to the local services and support available to them."

St Mungo's outreach team in Waltham Forest follows up StreetLink referrals by going out to find people where they are sleeping, finding them a safe place to stay until a more settled home can be arranged and ensuring they have access to health and other services.

Simon Hughes, Regional Head for St Mungo's, said: "Rough sleeping is harmful and dangerous, and even more so in cold weather. Finding people and helping them inside quickly is vital, and from there we can talk about longer term accommodation. Our outreach team in Waltham Forest will be working alongside a range of partners this winter to help those in need across the borough. We really appreciate the support and concern of the community and would ask people to use the StreetLink app if they are concerned about someone."

Cllr Louise Mitchell, Cabinet Member for Housing, said: "The council works with partners all year round to try and get rough sleepers off the streets, to give them the support they deserve, and to get a decent roof over their heads.

"We strive to provide new homes and support services that will get people back into good health and boost their employability skills. We need the help of our residents to use StreetLink and let them know where rough sleepers are so that we can extend a helping hand and get them back on the road to success where they can make the most of their life chances.

"Rough sleepers experience discrimination and hardship every day. No-one should feel marginalised or forgotten in 21st century Britain and we will do all we can to help end this crisis."

Who funds StreetLink?

The St Mungo's / Homeless Link partnership is funded by the Ministry for Housing, Communities and Local Government (MHCLG).

Do Immigration Control Enforcement officers also patrol with outreach staff?

Immigration patrols do NOT accompany outreach officers on patrol. The focus is on providing help and support to those in immediate need, regardless of who they are.

Are there special services available during especially cold winter nights?

Waltham Forest has signed a new severe weather protocol managed by the Greater London Assembly (GLA). Under this protocol, the GLA will activate Severe Weather Emergency Protocol (SWEP) when the temperature falls to 0 degrees Celsius or below in London.

Download StreetLink to help:

Streetlink app for Android phones: bit.ly/WFStreetLink_Android
Streetlink app for Apple phones: bit.ly/WFStreetLink_Apple StreetLink is not an emergency service. In serious cases, where you are worried that the person is in immediate risk or danger, please call 999 straight away.

Other resources

Besides StreetLink there are council-funded services and other agencies who offer advice, support and shelter to get rough sleepers off the streets in Waltham Forest, although you may not directly be able to refer anyone to them yourself.

Council Funded Services

- A dedicated outreach team who receive StreetLink referrals and respond to all new information with immediate effect, assessing the needs of rough sleepers on the streets.

- A 15-bed short-term assessment project for rough sleepers.
- The Single Homeless Housing and Support Hub where a wide range of services are available, including advice about housing, benefits, health and also washing facilities: bit.ly/2PivP9F

Your neighbourhood policing update

On 17 October Waltham Forest Police merged with Newham Police to form the new North East Basic Command Unit (BCU). Now, the BCU is launching their 'Neighbourhood Pledge', which outlines what the public can expect from neighbourhood policing. It is part of an ongoing commitment to improve accountability, transparency and confidence in neighbourhood policing.

The Met aims to make communities safer by providing visible and accountable policing at the most local level, with Safer Neighbourhood Teams. Under the pledge, every ward will have a minimum of two Dedicated Ward Officers, Police Constables who work only on that ward, and one dedicated PCSO. These officers will, except for extenuating circumstances, be ring-fenced to their wards. All ward teams will maintain an active social media presence and ensure their contact information is available on their wards.

Cllr Ahsan Khan, Cabinet Member for Community Safety explains, "We welcome the launch of the 'Neighbourhood Pledge'. It's our priority to ensure residents feel safe at a local level within their communities and designated ward teams who are easy to contact will help us do just that. We will continue to work closely alongside our partners, schools and the BCU to ensure Waltham Forest residents are confident that they can go about their daily business without threat of crime and antisocial behaviour."

The Safer Neighbourhood teams will be visible in at least three presence areas on their ward each day they are on duty, and will carry out weekly weapon sweeps. They will hold regular public meetings to discuss ward issues. They will work together with the community, other police units, the council and partners to tackle antisocial behaviour and crime issues in their area. There will also be a Neighbourhood Tasking Team, providing a proactive presence throughout Waltham Forest.

The BCU's top priority is reducing serious youth violence and keeping our young people safe. The Pledge promises the BCU Schools and Youth Engagement Team will have a named police officer for every secondary school. They will build relationships with young people, share crime prevention advice, and provide safeguarding support. Each schools officer will also complete weapons sweeps, safer routes patrols before and after school, and deliver a structured engagement programme.

Finally, the Pledge aims to use our new 'Partnership and Prevention Hub' to improve efficiency and help our work with partners. It will be staffed by experts in supporting vulnerable people, licensing, faith and communities and drug and alcohol issues to provide advice and support to the Neighbourhood and Schools teams.
